

Haynes International Ltd Invest Their Future In METalchemist.

Çedilla Systems, a Microsoft Gold Partner for Business Solutions, are pleased to announce Haynes International Ltd as the latest company to implement METalchemist, the UK's leading Microsoft Business Solution for metals distribution businesses and service centres.

The Manchester based UK arm of Haynes International Ltd manufactures, develops & distributes nickel & cobalt based alloys for corrosion and high temperature resistant applications; including aerospace, chemical processing and offshore heat treatment & pollution control industries. Haynes UK has state of the art water jetting and laser cutting facilities to cut all types of alloys.

Prior to investing in METalchemist, Haynes had used financial management, stock and production management software developed internally. With Haynes's rapid business growth in recent years, the company quickly realised that their incumbent system no longer met their requirements. Haynes required a flexible and modern ERP (Enterprise Resource Planning) solution to improve sales order processing, tighten their inventory control, increase the visibility of business performance for accounting and budgeting, and improve their manufacturing capability and material certification functionality.

Haynes is confident that METalchemist can support these needs. "For some time now we have been experiencing problems associated with duplication of effort, reporting accuracy and visibility of information", commented Alan Harwood, IT Manager at Haynes. "These problems have largely been caused as a result of running a number of disparate systems across the organisation."

"We are confident that through investing in METalchemist with Çedilla we will be able to resolve these problems and see efficiencies increase throughout the company."

The 25 user system uses the award-winning Microsoft Business Solutions Navision as its platform. METalchemist is due to go live at Haynes UK site in Openshaw, Manchester in October 2005.
